SERIES OF ATHLETIC GAMES FOR BOYS OF CITY IS PROJECTED

Boston "Nineteen - Fifteen" for Summer.

Provide Sports in Every cal bombardment of the city. Section.

A fine series of athletic games, including water events, will be held in various places covering the entire city of flotilla, but it is expected that there is Boston during the summer months, beginning July 10 and ending with a great in holding off a foreign fleet. If they athletic day on Boston Common on Saturday, Sept. 4. These games will be under the auspices of the Boston Playground Association and financed by a sum provided by the directorate of "Boston-1915." At a meeting of the Boston Playground Association held at the school committee rooms this morning, Dr. Thomas F. Harrington announced the plan that has been formulated for these

.It was pointed out in presenting the plan that it was not an effort to develop Declares Amendments to the great individual athletes, but rather a heme for interesting all boys between the ages of 12 and 20 years in out-ofdoor activities which have for their pur pose the promotion of development.

With this view in mind the events planned combine to a great degree team work and handicap races, both of which on Boston Common. OUTLOOK GOOD FOR STANFORD

Is Selected by Many to Take the Western College Championship at Meet in Chicago

Third Game of Series With here over the status of the Leland Stan-CHICAGO-There is much excitement Boston Results in Tenth ford and Colorado track teams, both of Straight Victory for Pitcher championships here today. On May 29 these two colleges had a dual meet on the Colorado grounds, for which they were suspended.

OTHERS POSTPONED The other college men who compete in the conference games are afraid that they may be suspended in turn by the A. A. U. if they take part in the conference meet against the Stanford and California men. This suspension is not likely to occur, but the two teams suspended will have some trouble getting back into A. A. U. standing if the men want to compete in games outside of their college meets.

Stanford is regarded as likely to win the conference championship in today's games. Most estimates give the Californians about 30 points, although only eight men have been brought along. Captain Horton and Crawford are expected to be one-two in the shotput, and Crawford is expected to win the hammer throw. Reed has a fair chance to score in the 220-yard run, but Stanford has a stronger dash man in Wyman, who is likely to get points in the furlong and win the quarter-mile race, Miller, the star half-miler, may have a harder race than he expected to beat Dohmen of Wisconsin in the 880-yard run. OLD-TIME FIDDLERS TO PLAY FOLKLORE TUNES FOR PRIZES

U. S. Senator Taylor of Tennessee, Elected by Musical Skill, to Give Violin Exhibition Today.

GREENSBORO, N. C .- A fiddlers' con vention is being held here today and several hundred violinists from Virginia, Tennessee and North and South Carolina are playing folklore melodies for prizes in a unique contest.

Among the contestants are former Governor and present United States Senator Robert Taylor of Tennessee, famous as a fiddler and humorist, and many noted amateur performers from the four states. Senator Taylor won his election as Governor of his state on his skill in handling the fiddle, and his popularity thus gained also won for him his seat in the U.S. Senate.

It is not expected that the music or this occasion will be of the kind which obtains in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York or in like places in Boston, but the genuine folk-lore melodies of the "Arkansas Traveler," "Forked Deer," "Natchez Under the Hill," "Home, Sweet Home," will be heard.

Delegations from many towns and counties in the four states are at the convention with their faith pinned to some local fiddler of skill.

A long list of prizes has been arranged. Senator Taylor will deliver his famous lecture on "The Fiddle and the Bow."

TO AID AGRICULTURE

News of Boston Merchants Association Campaign to Enhance Tillage Finds Popular Favor.

Considerable satisfaction is expressed oday by farmers in the eastern part of Massachusetts at the news that the Boston Merchants Association intends to start a campaign on behalf of the agricultural interests of the state, believing that the prosperity of the business interests of the cities is inseparably interwoven with and dependent upon the success of agriculture.

Conditions that have prevailed for approximately two years, and which have been decidedly noticeable within a month or two past have brought about a stateof things that is giving an impetus to agricultural operations in this portion of Massachusetts. In the early autumn of 1907, at about the time when farmers whose interests compel them to purchase large quantities of grain, expected the customary annual drop in price owing to the harvesting of the season's crop, they were confronted instead by a decided advance in price. This advanced price continued until a great many farmers had so modified their form of farming that they had interest in the grain market. This meant a falling off in the animal industries, a tendency that was felt and regretted elsewhere than in Massachusetts. Numbers of dairymen managed to effect some shift so as to avoid buying so much grain and feed, if not to do away with it altogether. In some cases this meant auctioneering off entire herds.

Less radical expedients were to cut down the herds to the best producers; or to house over the indoor season only POLAND SPRINGS, Me .- This resort, that number of acres is under cultiva- cows that were dry and that therefore which has enjoyed an international tion. MUSIC OF INSECTS.

Though the sounds made by insects may not in themselves be musical, according to our standard of music, yet many insect performers give us great pleasure, perhaps because of the pleasant memories which they call up. Who among us does not love the hum of the bee? How delightful is the lazy drone of the great steely-blue dor-beetle, as he rambles along in the twilight of a summer night! The lively chirping of the cricket, too, has inspired more than one poet, and the great novelist, Charles Dickens, used it in a well known story

HOW PINS ARE MADE.

How many children know how pins are made, or that a few centuries ago pins were so expensive that poorer people used long thorns, fish bones or splinters

At the time of the revolution pins were made of iron, and had one end filed to a point and a piece of fine wire twisted around the other end for a head. In the early days of the United States pins were all made in Europe. They became so scarce here when the war of 1812 stopped their importation that the price rose to a dollar a package.

Nowadays in our big pin factories, pins are made of fine wire just the thickness of pins. The wire is first stretched to take out the kinks, and is then cut into pin to draw a drastic set of resolutions where the partial plate and ordinary are made of fine wire just the thickness lengths. One end of the wire is then struck so sharply that it flattens out and through a slot just wide enough to allow the stems to pass through. Hanging thus by their heads, the lower end of the

CURRENCY ISSUES INTEREST EUROPE

Foreigners Are Also Noting the Progress of the Tariff Legislation Here, Declares $ Banker Schiff.

NEW YORK—Jacob H. Schiff, the banker, who has just returned from a six weeks' trip in Europe, states that he noted much interest among financiers abroad in currency problems of this country, also that everywhere he encountered keen interest in tariff legislation.

Final settlement of the tariff, he said, is eagerly awaited, not only in the belief that it would signalize a revival of commercial and industrial activity here, but for the effect it is hoped it would have on the settlement of the currency question.

It is particularly hoped, said Mr. Schiff, that with the tariff out of the way, the solution of the currency problem will be sought with energy.

As the first step toward this, the immediate mobilizing of capital through the enormous absorption of securities in the United States and the simultaneou heavy gold export is being pointed to. while, with a sound system, we should be in a position to reduce the volmue of currency to the decreased needs of comcommerce and industry.

As it is, the large surplus of paper currency not now needed can be employed only in securities purchased, or t must displace our gold by driving it to other countries. Both are being done. The report of the monetary commission is eagerly awaited.

MEINZINGER SAYS SHOULD WASH CARS ON GLIDDEN TOURS

Man Who Drove Pathfinder Increase Efficiency.

MAKE TEST FAIRER

George Meinzinger, who drove the E-M-F Pathfinder for the 1909 Glidden tour, is a firm believer in having the automobiles washed each night, or at least twice a week. He takes the position that the tour should be for the purpose of proving the efficiency of the mechanism and that this can be best done when the car.is kept free from such foreign substances as are picked up on every day's run, In expressing his views on this

"It is a shame to subject any piece of mechanism to such treatment as a car gets when it must carry from day to day the dried and caked mud and sand that have accumulated. Besides, it defeats the real purpose of such a tour, the object of which is to test the mechanism under severe touring conditions. Any man knows a piece of machinery to run at all, must not only be kept well oiled in every moving part, but scrupulously clean as well. The object of cleanliness of course is to permit of examination and oiling.

"In past tours no provision for washing has been made; in fact the cars are taken out of the hands of drivers at night and only permitted to have the tanks filled before starting. To attempt to wash a car would be to lose the rating. Now under these conditions the best car in the contest might, frequently has been, defeated by one of inferior quality. When sand and grit have been permitted to accumulate on the chassis, it is simply a matter of accident if some particles find their way to an important point. And though this point may be more carefully protected in one car than in another, the better one is just as likely to lose. Not once in a hundred times will the same splash of grit-laden water strike two cars in the same spot. Nor the same jolt send the destroying sand to the same part. "In the 1909 tour, which is 1000 miles longer than any previous one, there will be 18 days during which under present rules no driver can give his car rational treatment-cannot even wash it. When you remember that the Pathfinder carried, by actual weight, 1100 pounds of Minn.; that that mud was of the "gumbo kind" which cannot be washed off but must be cut away with sharpened sticks or other tools, and that it wouldn't shake off in several days' run-

CRUDE OIL PUMPED TO THE SEABOARD

Standard Pipe Line Fifteen Hundred Miles in Length Is Laid From Western

The Standard Oil Company has completed all the pumping stations and pipe for This Year's Endurance lines necessary to pump crude oil in Run Believed It Would large quantities from the Oklahoma and Kansas oil fields to the seaboard, a distance of 1500 miles, says the New York

> It has been reported for a week or more by employees of the Standard Oil Company's new plant at Bay View, near Elizabeth, N. J., that oil has been received through the pipe lines there which came clear from the Oklahoma field, and it is also said that the Standard Oil tanks at Constable Hook are now holding oil piped from the Far Western wells. One of the foremen at Constable Hook said that not only Oklahoma but Kansas oil was being piped to Constable Hook, and the flow had started some

> J. I. C. Clark for the Standard Oil Company confirmed the statement that the machinery was already in working order for bringing oil from the West, a distance of 1500 miles. Whether any oil had been actually brought through the pipe lines from the Oklahoma field he did not know, but if it was now coming to the seaboard it was a matter which would cause no comment among oil men. The plant for pumping oil from the great West to the coast, he said, had been installed to meet emergencies which might arise were the Pennsylvania and other fields in the East to lessen their

> The pumping stations are from 12 to 40 miles apart, according to the con-formation of the land over which the pipes are laid. In rough, mountainous country the distances separating the sta-tions are about 12 miles. The big pumps at the main station are capable of pumping through 10-inch pipes about 35,000 gallons of oil a day. The bulk of the oil coming through the pipes to the seaboard is refined here and exported.

The question of designing for appearance or for efficiency will perhaps always be a disputed one among automobile manufacturers. Thomas B. Jeff- lines done in beads or quillwork. These ery, manager of the Rambler, says: "It lines may mean different things, but in is not always wise to blindly copy. Sometimes an original designer, studying mainly for appearance, will neglect consideration of efficiency.

"This truth is exemplified in the construction of automobile radiators, where buffalo. Even after the practical extincmud when we arrived at Mankato, to make an appearance of compactness the forward corner of the radiator was made of rounded form and unthinking ing that animal signified abundance and followers have copied it.

"If the designer wished the radiator more frequently. to have greater efficiency, with less reditions. Of course it will be said that the mud will not be so bad in July—we all hope so. But there's nothing certain about that. And it is certain that a good rain on the previous day would make the gumbo as sticky as it was in April when we drove through Minnesota and Iowa."

The eagle figure has almost as wide a significance as the rows of squares indicating animal tracks or the transverse straight lines which mean paths. The Arapahoes denote the bird of the sun upon their moccasins by an inverted pyramid, a figure like a carpenter's square, and a cross of which each arm is formed of double lines.

It is a notable fact that the experts and finish. The general appearance of of the bureau of ethnology now know the same dimensions. ENGLISH RELICS FOR THE ASKING

When New Streets Are Cut Through in City of London Ancient Houses Are Torn Ruthlessly Away.

With the cutting through of new streets many ancient houses have been residences and boasted bits of fine old brass, valuable woodwork and door knockers so elaborately carved and wrought as to be things of beauty in themselves. In the hurry of getting rid of these old houses some wonderful pieces of age-colored wood and articles of brass and china have been picked up by those on the watch for almost nothing.

Among other things several Rockingham china door knobs, the pride of gen-erations past, have fairly been given away. Thirty-seven cents was paid by a woman student for a door knob which was as fine a specimen of Rockingham as you could see.

Naturally the American was proud of her bargain and meant to keep it. She washed it carefully and put it in the place of honor in her room and wrote long letters about it to America.

Life in London is expensive for students and one day the American heard of a rich woman who wanted just that kind of Rockingham door knob to match a set for a drawing room, so she sold her treasure for $25. Now it is being used again in a beautiful drawing room furnished as nearly as possible in the style which was followed when the Rockingham door knobs were first in vogue.

MISS ROBSON'S APPEARANCES. In view of Miss Robson's success with Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's new play, it is interesting to recall her stage biography.

Miss Eleanor Robson was born in Wigan, Lancashire, England. She is the daughter of Mrs. Madge Carr Cook, the actress who is distinguished for her playing of a long line of character parts culminating in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Miss Robson was educated at a private school on Staten Island, New

She appeared on the stage for the first time at the Columbia Theater, Sept. 13, 1807, in the part of Marjorie Knox in "Men and Women" with the T. Daniel Frawley stock company. She stayed for some time with the Frawley company, playing ingenues and afterward leading roles. She made her New York debut Sept. 10, 1900, playing Bonita in "Arizona," at the Herald Square Theater.

THE BOSTON OPERA HOUSE. Work on the building of the new Boston Opera House is progressing rapidly, and Ralph L. Flanders, general manager of the opera company, states that in a very short time work will begin on the inside decorations, the placing of the chairs and the general outfitting of the building. The opera house, on Huntington avenue, will seat nearly 2900 persons, and the seating arrangement is such that every one of the seats will afford an excellent view of practically the entire stage. In every respect the building is perfectly constructed and it will be the most modern playhouse devoted to grand opera in the world. Miss Loie Fuller, who is to have complete charge of the ballets at the new opera house, is now abroad, preparing for the coming season. At the opera house she and her pupils will interpret six important ballets, illustrative of Betthoven's sonatas, Listz's rhapsodies, Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's (with Mendelssohn's music), 'Salome" (with Pierne's setting), "Orpheus and Eurydice" (with Gluck music), 'Undine" and other subjects.

Miss Fuller's work has been highly praised by Rodin, the famous French culptor, who wrote after seeing her arrangement of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," that "nothing in all antiquity ould have been more beautiful." Jules Claretie, director of the Theatre Francais, was equally enthusiastic.

Befare sailing for Europe Miss Fuller signed contracts for a series of performances next season from Boston to the Pacific coast, to British Columbia, debut in Buenos Ayres 11 years ago. Eastern Canada and Mexico, under the

CALLS FOR REPORT ON FOREST LIMITS

All the district foresters have been requested by Gifford Pinchot, chief forester at Washington, to tabulate a report of the lands embraced in the forest reserves, says the Los Angeles Times. The policy of the service has been to exclude all agricultural land from the boundaries of the national forests. Mr. Pinchot believes that some areas contiguous to forest reserves should be added and some sections of the various reserves should be excluded for public use. In considering the changes of boundary, the chief forester advises that the character of the lands should be carefully considered.

HIS LETTER.

You may not wish to publish this, But some editor would, I know; If it should not meet your standard, Will you kindly tell me so?

Perhaps your waste basket is full Of attempts to rhyme like this, And so your readers never know The poetic gems they miss.

I do not do this work for pay, And am looking not for fame; If you should give a nom de plume, It would please me just the same.

If you don't care to give it space In your paper to appear, Please send it back by early mail, And I'll have it printed here.

NEW LONG ISLAND LINE SOON READY

NEW YORK-The trolley line that is to bisect Long Island, and which has been awaited for many years, will be ready on July 1. This has been announced by President Ralph Peters of the Long Island railroad. The road is to connect Huntington on the north shore with Amityville on the south. From Amityville the line will run to Great South Bay. A celebration will be held on Aug. 14, when the trolley line will reach from shore to shore.

WIRELESS ON AIRSHIPS. BERLIN-The Gros airship has conducted a series of experiments over Berlin with wireless 'telegraphy. The apparatus was recently installed on the airship, and the trials lasted for some hours while the craft maneuvered over the roofs of the city.

Marti De Sola Will Spend a Year in the Republics Talking Commerce Interchange.

With the object of encouraging trade between the far east and the Latin-American republics, Ing. Marti de Sola, Mexican consul at Shanghai, China, is on lies of South and Central America and the West Indies, says the Mexican Herbuilding in China, but for the last three years, seeing the tremendous possibilities of trade between Latin America, principally the Pacific republics, and China and Japan, he has retired from the practise of Church. Address MABE, 20 East Claremout st. his former business and has entered the commercial game as a propagandist and christian Science Church. 8 Columbus sq. promoter.

Mr. de Sola has brought with him complete set of samples of Chinese and Japanese manufactured articles which he intends to exhibit in the different centers of commerce of Latin America, and he proposes to take with him on his return trip samples of such American products which could be profitably utilized in the oriental countries.

"Oriental labor conditions are such that it will be possible to undersell the whole world in manufactured products commerce recently in Mexico. However, China and Japan need raw natural products, and up to date the oriental trade has been entirely unknown in Latm America.

"My trip will extend over the period of more than a year, as I purpose visiting the capitals at least of every Latin-American country. I will probably remain a month in Mexico."

Asked concerning the rumored prohi bition which the Japanese government has issued against further immigration to Mexico, Ing. de Sola said that the idea was preposterous, as it was imperative that Japan should encourage emigration, as the population is increasing in such ratio as to make it impossible that Nippon should any tonge support the over-population.

"Of source this emigration will se carefully regulated by the foreign office of Japan," said he, "in order to prevent the recurrence of such expensive incidents as were recently registered in reru and Brazil, the Japanese government having been forced to return home thousands of penniless subjects who either had been deceived or had not made sure of a livelihood in the new country, and as a result were unable to

THE STOCK MARKET CONTINUES ACTIVE

Early Irregularity Followed by Another Swing Upware in the General List, New Records Being Made.

LOCAL STOCKS DULI

A good deal of irregularity in price movements characterized the trading in New York today at the opening of the market. Stocks that have had th greatest advance during the week wer inclined to sag off, while those that have been inactive were raised to a higher level. The market was broad and active although the volume of business for the half day's session was not so large as compared with the corresponding period vesterday.

During the early part of the session the Erie issues were prominent, the common opening 5% higher at 37 ap gaining % more. Ontario & Western was lifted 2 points to 54 1/2. Atchisor rose to a new high range during the first hour, selling up to 1151/2. Northern Pacific opened up 1/2 at 150 and advance a point more. Great Northern preferred improved from 1491/2 to 1503/4. Louis ville & Nashville opened up 1/4 at 1403 and advanced to 142. Brooklyn Rapi Transit opened off ¾ at 81½ and quickly recovered the loss and then ad vanced fractionally.

The industrials, particularly th United States Steel securities, were weal during the first sales but gradually im proved as the market advanced. The common started off 1/4 under last night' closing at 671/4 and advanced a point The preferred was off 1/2 at the opening at 1261/s and after reacting to 1255/ the opening fractionally. Westinghouse U s Electric took quite a spurt, going from 841/4 to 87 during the first hour.

The Boston market was a rather listless affair and responded in no manner to the activity of the New York market. Securities seemed inclined to decline for want of support, but the losses were generally fractional. Mass Mining, which has been the weak feature of the market this week was up 1/4 at the opening at 9, but quickly dropped the fraction. Fractional losses were sustained during the first sales by nearly all of the cop per issues. United Fruit retained its ad vance of yesterday, opening unchange at 139 and gaining another point. There was some profit taking befor the close causing some recessions i prices, but the closing figures were gener ally above the opening, and good ne gains were made by many of the activ

MARKET OPINIONS

Hayden, Stone & Co., Boston, say: "Such a market as we have had this week can mean but one thing, viz.: that the big men are squarely behind this movement, and will continue their agressive tactics. There is no use pointing out that prices are not consistent with dividends; crops, cheap money, increasing railroad and industrial earnings-everything, except tariff adjustment, is in favor of the interests that are working for higher prices, and they are evidently going to push their advantage. The Boston copper market lags behind the rest of the list, primarily because these stocks had already discounted a 15-cent metal market, and there is nothing further at the moment Oct11.42 11.47 11.40 11.45 to discount."

Robinson Brothers, Pittsburg, say: At this time a year ago every effort was put forth to create the impression that business was better than it appeared to be on the surface. Today business is better than it is represented-in this: the consumer is now seeking the producer, and his current requirements have become so of subscription to convertible bonds were imperative that he has been compelled admitted to quotation on New York to enter the market as a buyer, regard- Stock Exchange. less of possible advantages to accrue from waiting until the final passage of H. One of these is the growing crops, and the other is the money market. The crop season is backward. From present indications, the yield of winter wheat will be below the average, but it will not be so short as to justify the recent extreme high money crops

Pettigrew, Bright & Company, Boston, "Are prices justified, prices of stocks? Are they not so near the early 1907, or pre-panic basis as to be dangerous? Perhaps, if pre-panic conditions are here or are to recur. But if the lesson has been learned and the causes of the panie are to be avoided carefully henceforth, why should we say that there is a set line beyond which share values may not pass? Why may not the ever increasing ability of America to expand, to create new value, apply to the securities that represent the earning power of our railroad and industrial corporations? The argument may seem trifle academical, but it were folly to assume that because a stock reached a certain price once on a time, it never must beyond, notwithstanding possible of conditions, general and spe-

The following statement was given out by the New England Board of Transportation:

"At a meeting held in the rooms of the Trunk Line Association, New York, yes terday, June 3, a temporary settlemen of the dispute between the lines leading from Boston and those leading from Baltimore was reached, by the terms of which the Boston & Maine railroad has secured for Boston and New England ports the Baltimore, scale for which it has been contending on all so-called commodity rates.

"On the class rates a compromise was made, by which Boston secures a reduction to the Philadelphia scale, but wil have figures slightly higher than the Baltimore scale, as outlined below. This adjustment will go into effect in August and remain in effect until Dec. 31, 1909 Between now and that time an attemp will be made to reach a permanent basis which we trust will give Boston the Bal timore rates not only on commodities but on class rates as well.

"While this settlement is by no means entirely satisfactory, it is a step in the right direction, and the Boston & Maine road should be commended for the gallant fight it has made for New England interests. We believe it was wise to declare a temporary trust, providing for a restoration of rates to a more nearly normal basis, especially as a distinct gain has been made all along the line, and because a prolonged continuance of very low rates on imported articles inflicts a grave injustice on manufacturers and dealers in articles produced or made in this country. Justice demands, however, that ultimately Boston should have the same rates on all import traffic as Balti- Amer Tel & Tel......140 1401/2 140 more, and we spect to see the Boston & New England Tel....140 140½ 140 ing both the old and the new rates. On 41% 40% the commodity rates Boston was 1 per cent higher than Baltimore. Under the new arrangement the Boston rate will be the same as that of Baltimore.

The Boston & Maine also reserves the right to publish commodity rates from Boston the same as from Baltimore on any article now having no commodity rate from Boston, which may move in sufficient quantities to warrant specia country graciously granted permission for the troops to land in Maine and go overland to Canada. The Trent, by the way, was the British steamship on which Mason and Slidell en route to Europe as commissioners of the Confederacy, were seized by an American captain. The United States disavowed the action of Captain Wilkes and this prevented complications with Great Britain. It is really the common ideal of peace that defends the British-American boundary lines, and the advantage which has followed from this agreement to do away with armaments all would agree with all to learn war no

The Old-Fashioned Soft Sugar

A correspondent of the New York Sun says that the old fashioned "brown sugar," sometimes known as "soft sugar," the kind they used for cooking when we middle-aged youngsters were boys, disappeared with the introduction of the modern centrifugal process of sugar making. It was a product of the old "open kettle" process. Some 60,000 to 70,000 tons are still made in Barbados and sent to England. The excision of the "No. 16 Dutch Standard" color test would not bring "soft" sugar on the

Big Figures and Great Deeds

Some recent items of news and gossip give force to the off-repeated prediction that we are about to enter on the greatest period of big figures the country has yet known. During the month of May industrial, railroad and other corporations having a capital stock of $258,459,900 were organized in the United States. This certainly looks like a fair beginning. But this is not all. Scarcely was the $10,000,000 dry goods combination launched before every one of its shares was taken up. Moreover, E. H. Harriman, asked if he was going to Europe to dispose of $150,-000,000 of bonds, as had been reported, just before his departure said: "I wouldn't have to go out of this house to do that in half an

Considered merely in the light of "straws," these incidents would seem to indicate that the wind is going to blow for some time to come from quarters where people talk in millions, and where no surprise is felt or manifested if the conversation turns occasionally

The venerable father of John Pierpont Morgan warned his son against ever falling into the habit of believing that this country had seen its best days. "There will be dull times at intervals," he said, "but this will be the fault of men, not of the country. The man who has faith in the country is the man who is bound to win." Facts fully justify this optimism.

Every industrial, commercial and financial crisis the country has experienced has been followed by greater prosperity than it has known before. The development of conditions which make for greater prosperity is now going on at an unprecedented rate. To a greater and greater degree men are growing in knowledge of the earth's resources, and in the ability to reach them and to apply them to their use.

It may be assumed with reasonableness that an era of unparalleled prosperity is at hand. That it will test American character is no less certain than that American character is better prepared for the test than it has ever been. The last few years have done much toward destroying the vicious belief that money is, or should be, the end and aim of man's endeavors. If we are on the eve of a period of big figures, we are also on the eve of a period of great deeds.

Great wealth brings great responsibilities, and it is not going too far to say that in no previous age of the world's history have these responsibilities been understood as they are today.

THE desire of Great Britain for an offensive and defensive alliance with the United States is well understood. The traditional repugnance of the United States to all foreign alliances of this nature is understood equally well. At Washington the other day, Baron Uriu, vice-admiral of the Japanese navy, used this language: "If war should come, I expect to see the United States, England and Japan lined up against the other world powers." That a similar expectation is entertained among leading British statesmen is a fact of which we have had repeated and sufficient evidence of late. The attitude of the United States toward Great Britain and Japan is one of warm friendship.

It may be put down as a settled proposition that there will be no offensive or defensive alliances between the United States and these nations. Friendship for Great Britain and Japan does not imply on our part enmity to the other great powers. We have nothing to gain and much to lose by assuming a hostile attitude toward any

Nevertheless, an alliance between the three nations is not only possible but desirable. It must, however, be an alliance for the promotion and preservation of peace rather than for the carrying on

An alliance between the United States, Great Britain and Japan with this end in view would constitute a beneficent international copartnership. It would be one of the greatest moral forces the modern world has known. It would be able to exercise in world politics an influence which would compel recognition from the most arrogant of governments and the most headstrong of statesmen. By standing behind the righteous decisions of The Hague conference it could enforce international arbitration. In time it would be able to insure the civilized world against war so as to bring about disarmament and to put an end to militarism.

It need not be an exclusive copartnership at all. It should welcome into its organization other nations desirous of sharing in the glory and rewards of its triumphs over the pride and passions

This kind of a foreign alliance, we believe, the people of the United States would gladly approve of.

Czar and Caesar IT is wholly plausible that the impending meeting between the Emperor William and the Czar was proposed by the latter rather than the former, but to see in this step a yielding attitude of the one toward the other is entirely unwarranted. If Russia has decided, under sustained Austro-German diplomatic and military pressure, to change the course of its international policy, the fact would not have been heralded by an imperial interview. The Czar's desire, on the contrary, seems to be for an understanding on the basis of existing obligations and affiliations. The object of such an understanding can only be the maintenance of peace; and one of the modern guarantees of world peace is the Anglo-Russian pact. The Persian situation alone would seem to exclude all thought of diplomatic readjustment for some time to come.

Emperor William undoubtedly stands today more powerful than ever. It may be justly said that his power is more real than Napoleon's ever was, for it is based on the rise of a great nation, not on individual ambition. Whatever fear or suspicion may have been caused in Germany at the time the triple entente came into existence, it is evident that there is not a vestige of apprehension left. But if the triple entente is no longer regarded in Germany and Austria as likely to endanger peace, it has also become evident that it is based not on aggressive designs but on great and lasting interests and that it has, after all, survived the intense strain of the late Balkan crisis. What, then, has the power of the German Emperor to do with the triple entente? Why should he desire to detach Russia from England? A great deal has been written about Russia's decision to dismantle the Polish fortresses of Novo-Georgeievsk, Warsaw, Zegrj and Ivangorod. The first impression was that it meant a German-Austrian-Russian entente. But a closer examination of the frontier conditions proved this view to be quite erroneous. While the decision breaks up the defensive system of the Vistula and Narew, which for thirty years had been considered essential for the security of Poland and Russia, it is now held that the line of the Vistula alone, without the four fortresses, offers sufficient obstacles to an invading army to allow of concentrating the garrisons on an interior line of defense where greater freedom of maneuvers is possible. The military developments of the Balkan crisis have clearly shown that Russia is entirely on the defensive on her western frontier and the prikase ordering the dismantlement of the advanced Polish fortresses simply reflects the lesson learned during the crisis, supported by a number of reasons gathered since the peace of Portsmouth.

Existing international relations have served the cause of peace better than preceding constellations, and when Czar and Caesar meet it seems certain that they will discuss the situation on the basis of those peace pledges.

The . Business Situation

ATTENTION of the entire financial and industrial world has been directed this week to the high prices at which the common and preferred shares of the United States Steel Corporation are selling. There is, of course, more or less manipulation of prices in the stock market and this has had much to do with the fact that these securities are quoted at the highest prices in the history of the should be considered that the iron and steel industry has had a most wonderful development within the past few months. The common stock has appreciated to the extent of about $122,000,000. This represents more than the actual increase in the intrinsic value of the property, of course, but if the improvement in the trade continues for the remainder of the fiscal year at the same ratio as it has since the last quarterly report of the corporation was issued the traders in the stock may be justified in their discounting of the future.

The advance in prices of the United States Steel securities forcibly illustrates the return of confidence in the business community. And it is well founded. Prices of steel products have recovered from 50 to 75 per cent of the cut of last February, when the "open market" was announced. The increased demand for structural steel due to increased building activity caused some of the independents to raise the price of structural steel this week, and further advances in billets and wire products are expected soon by reason of the natural development of general business. The maximum operating capacity of some of the large mills is said to be taxed to the utmost in order to fill

The large increase in May bank clearances throughout the country, particularly in those sections which suffered most from the business depression, lends much encouragement to the situation. The reports of railroad earnings for the month of April, published this week, show a further expansion in this direction. Railroad equipment companies are getting busy, indicating that the railroads are making needed purchases to take care of the increased traffic. Best of all, the crop reports from various states of the Union are exceedingly favorable, the prospects being that there will be an abundant harvest and that farmers will receive in the aggregate the highest prices for their products ever recorded.

If BOSTON is to have free ferry boats this may mean eventually bigger and better ones for the plain people who enjoy a harbor ride.

The Public

Sense of

Cleanliness

FIFTEEN years ago the Chicago river was one of the foulest streams in America, if not in the world. It cost Chicago $30,000,000 to purify it. The sanitary canal, constructed for this purpose, has cost many moré millions since and will probably cost millions more in the future, but the additional cost is mainly the result of deep waterway improvements. It is quite proper to say that Chicago has never regretted a dollar of this vast expenditure. It has now not only a clean river, but, as a consequence of its effort at purification, it has in readiness the first link in the chain of waterways that is destined to connect the Great Lakes with the Gulf of Mexico.

All this is put forth simply to illustrate what a municipality, backed by the determination of its people, can accomplish in this particular; and the illustration is timely now, when New York city is very justly protesting against the contamination of the Hudson and when Philadelphia is very justly complaining of the pollution of Sewers empty into the Hudson and into the Delaware. In this respect the problems which New York city and Philadelphia have to meet are similar to that met by Chicago. There is this difference, that if New York city and Philadelphia succeed in preventing further pollution of the Hudson and the Delaware they will have achieved more than Chicago has accomplished. For, while the Chicago river has been transformed for the most part into a decent stream, Lake Michigan, the source of Chicago's water supply, is not as yet fully protected against contamination.

People are no longer content with mere external cleanliness, or with the mere appearance of cleanliness. London and Paris not so many years ago were emptying the contents of their sewers respectively into the Thames and the Seine with great complacency. The struggle in both cities now is to keep sewage out of those streams. Not so many years ago almost everything portable that could not be tolerated on shore was dumped into Boston harbor. A recent report stamps Boston harbor as one of the cleanest in the country.

Cleanliness has come to mean something more than the concealment of dirt and the public sense of cleanliness has become more refined. Improvement in all lines will be a natural result.

A JUDGE has recently decided that what a man says in his sleep should not be taken seriously. It does not necessarily follow, of course, that in the opinion of this judge what men sometimes say when awake should be accepted without question.

One of the lessons to be learned from the Philadelphia strike is that it is much better to consider beforehand than behindhand.

To GAUGE quickly and accurately the degree of civilization attained by a nation, take a walk through one of its big prisons. Time was when in all countries the punishment meted out by society was nothing but revenge. It was based on hate and fear. The purpose was to keep the culprit away from society for a given length of time, no attention being paid as to whether he might or might not lose his criminal propensities. Incidental to this mode of imprisonment was the hope to frighten prospective criminals back into the narrow path. The method was crude because wholly negative and the degree to which it has survived reflects the degree of progress made by society in insuring its own existence and develop-

The progress from negative to positive methods in dealing with criminals is unquestionable, but we are yet in the pioneer stage. Not many helping hands are yet proffered. But where a hand is held out there is no cause for sneer and less for shame, and we are glad to come across such paragraphs as the following from the Saint Paul Pioneer Press:

The Christian Science Monitor is said to be the only daily newspaper that is permitted to circulate freely in the penal institutions of this country because it does not carry criminal or sensational news of any kind; and the Prison Mirror says the publishers seem to be proud

We believe, or rather we know, that the only logical purpose of the prison is discipline. Society cannot protect itself in any other way than by disciplining those who have erred. Discipline is derived from a word meaning "to learn," and it is only by imparting knowledge that society can lessen and finally overcome crime. The sum of the knowledge a convict must acquire to be reformed is that his evil propensity is no part of his individuality. This alone will enable him to stand firm when, after leaving prison, temptation would lure him

Constant appeal to his true nature must finally awaken him to the fact that it is the captivity of his criminal delusions that he must escape from, and that not until he escapes from those delusions will the prison walls disappear for good. Such an appeal is possible through reading matter that shall attract to uplift, and The Christian Science Monitor is deeply grateful for the opportunity it has of saying every day to the captives: "Come now, let us reason together."

WHILE it is true that the $370,000,000 of gold in the Denver mint is drawing no interest, it is also true that its presence so far back in the interior gives tone to public confidence.

In Honor of Balboa

COLON (Columbus) is the name of the eastern terminus of the Panama canal. La Boca (the mouth) is the name which the western terminus has borne up to a very recent date. Certain persons in authority, with regard for the fitness of things, have changed the latter to Balboa, in order that an explorer whose achievements rank in the annals of these continents secondary only to those of Columbus himself should be properly recognized and honored. Vasco Nunez de Balboa arrived in Hayti eight years after the first voyage of Columbus. Ten years later, accompanied by Encisco, he led an expedition to Darien and on Sept. 25, 1513, from the top of a mountain, discovered the Pacific. Like many of his compeers, he suffered because of his success. He had, in the first instance, quarreled with Encisco. His discovery of the Pacific paved the way for new trials. Although he had demonstrated his loyalty to his King he was superseded in command of the expedition and punished by fine on a trumped-up charge of insubordination. In 1517, Pedrarias Davila, his' successor, under whom he served as deputy, accused Balboa wantonly of treasonable designs and had him put out of the way.

Four hundred years from the date of his discovery of the Pacific-which will be four years hence-it is hoped that the Panama canal may be opened and that this event and the Balboa anniversary may be eelebrated jointly. At all events, it was appropriate that the western terminus of the great highway which is to unite the Atlantic and the Pacific should perpetuate his name.

ONE fact about the recent eclipse of the moon should not be overlooked, and that is the example which it set in punctuality. Even people who are invariably late could not withhold their admiration over the splendid manner in which it kept its engagement.

IT poes not follow because our government at this time is taking a constant and a deep interest in Cuba that it is prompted in doing so by motives unfriendly to the present government of the island. On the contrary, it is with the view of insuring the stability of the Cuban government and the independence of the nation that a sharp eye is being kept by Washington on the conduct of those who have been chosen to administer the affairs of the sister republic. The one point that needs to be corrected is a belief that our government is either surprised or disappointed in the results of Cuba's second grant of independence. It was hardly expected in Washington that affairs would at once be conducted in Cuba as well as if the country had been self-governing for centuries. It is only fair to say that many discounts made in behalf of the Cubans when the island was last turned over to them have proved to be unnecessary.

The watchfulness of our government over Cuba is not a menace to Cuban independence. It is not intended to embarrass or to irritate the islanders. Persons or interests disposed to excite them to the point of rebellion against this friendly guardianship may try to place a different interpretation on it, but the Cubans should by this time understand us well enough to know that our intentions toward them are not unfriendly.
